The Davis History Traveling Library

The Davis History Traveling Library is a mobile collection of fifteen larger-scale and milestone works on the history of Davis, California. Photographed in their traveling display format on the following page, the titles of the volumes with details on their publication and availability are given on page three.

Purposes

This mobile library is a project of the Davis History Research Group (DHRG), a non-profit volunteer association whose primary purpose is “to advance research on the history of Davis, California” (www.davishistoryresearch.org).

One way to advance Davis history research is to increase public knowledge of the fact that it even exists.

The Davis History Traveling Library seeks to put on dramatic display major works in an evolving and robust research tradition to which many have contributed.

The fifteen works in this collection are, fortunately, only a small part of a much larger body of research that can be explored at www.davishistory-research.org and www.davishistoricalsociety.org.

Available for Events

The Davis History Traveling Library is available for display and hands-on public perusal at events of interested organizations and groups.

If desired, a DHRG member can give a talk describing the works in the collection and their various themes.

For more information or to arrange a visit, contact John Lofland, DHRG coordinator, at jlofland@ucdavis.edu or 758-5258.

Volumes in the Davis History Traveling Library

A Project of the Davis History Research Group

This is a collection of larger-scale and “milestone” volumes on Davis history intended as an introduction to the topic rather than as a comprehensive depiction.

There are numerous additional and invaluable booklets, map collections, photograph archives, and other materials that go far beyond these works. Many are listed and described on the DHRG website at www.davis-historyresearch.org and at www.davishistoricalsociety.org.

The entries in green following each volume are Yolo County Library call numbers or other public locations.
